

Course: Facial Reflexology for Infertility

By Lone Sorensen in Barcelona (in English)

For many years, Facial Reflexology has been successfully used for the treatment of infertility in men and women. Scientific research has shown that in 85% of cases where men and women were unable to conceive, at least one of the partners in the relationship displayed symptoms of long term stress. It is easy to understand why Facial Reflexology, which is a very relaxing and de-stressing form of therapy, is so successful in the treatment of infertility.

It is not only the relaxation element that helps reflexology therapy to be so effective, there are also other elements that play a major role.

In Facial Reflexology the stimulation of specific key points on the face produces a normalisation and eventual increase in the hormonal production especially in the hypothalamus, ovaries and testicles. It is precisely these areas that, in many cases, fail to produce enough hormones because of stress.

Do you want to be specialised working with infertility problems?
The course content can be used for all kinds of hormonal problems.

Course content:

- The study of the temperature curve
- Menstrual Cycle related to the 5 elements
- Reproduction
- Fertile Period related to the 5 elements
- Analysis of hormonal system
- Combine individual treatment plans

John Patrick's story

Written by his mother Eliza Martin Way, Denmark

John Patrick is a happy 10 year-old boy, he was born with a genetic disorder.

John Patrick's birth was long and problematic. After many hours of a difficult labor it was necessary to deliver him by an emergency C-section. It was immediately apparent to the doctors who delivered him that something was wrong with him. The subsequent prolonged hospital stay was difficult for me and John Patrick.

To keep him alive, it was necessary to place John Patrick in an incubator. Unfortunately, from the monitoring equipment he received some terrible burns on his hands and feet.

After some time we were told by the doctors that John Patrick had a rare genetic disorder. The only real prognosis we were told was that his life expectancy would be short. They told us that the genetic disorder which John Patrick had, amongst other things, would cause his inner organs to be deformed.

The doctors also informed us that his learning abilities would be impaired and their evaluation was not very encouraging. The prognosis of John Patrick living in a vegetative state for the rest of his life was a daunting prospect.

John Patrick was then subjected to a wide range of examinations which eliminated, amongst other things, the previously predicted deformity of his inner organs. The examinations also determined, more precisely, the nature of his condition.

From the beginning, things did not look good for John Patrick. He was a fragile child who needed a lot of care and attention. In the following years we were gradually able to see and define many of John Patrick's impairments.

We were unable to make eye-contact with him. We noticed when we picked him up from daycare he seemed not to recognize us and we later discovered that it was because his eyesight was really bad. John Patrick was unable to see us, because he had only 20% visibility. His hearing was impaired and he had fluid in his ears. He lacked muscle tone, had problems with his balance and his feet were crooked. John Patrick had asthma and a lot of intestinal problems, amongst other problems.

I did everything that I possibly could to "train" him. I was inspired by reading different books about learning and play techniques and massage for children. The main problem was that the majority of those books were designed for "normal" children, but I persevered and massaged and trained John Patrick as well as I possibly could. I even got some positive results too.

Amongst other things, he learned to walk, keep his balance, eat by himself and play structurally. There were still a lot of other things that I didn't have the knowledge to help him with. A couple of those areas that I didn't know very much about were how to teach him social skills and fantasy play.

My main obstacle in training and helping John Patrick was the apparent lack of availability of qualified help or advice, so I was forced to search for the necessary tools and methods myself and try to apply them the best as I could. You can imagine my disappointment and frustration when it didn't work.

When John Patrick was five years old I met Lone Sorensen. I had been encouraged to take part in one of the courses she was running for parents of handicapped children. It was the first time that I had ever met a person who, not only understood what I was going through, but also knew and understood a lot about disabilities. I must admit that I was skeptical at first; I remember wondering "can so little stimulation really have such a big effect? "

I had, after all, struggled with massage, physical training, games and many other types of physically demanding activities. I was well aware of how much effort was needed just to achieve a little result. Here was a person who was telling me that by using only one and a half hours of stimulation a day, I would see obvious results after a very short time. At the same time I just couldn't help trusting Lone - she gave me new hope, she made me feel that I was no longer alone in my efforts to stimulate and improve the life of my son.

Following the parents course, I began to stimulate John Patrick with a type of pressure stimulation called Temprana Therapy. John Patrick really enjoyed it and we both found that it was very pleasant for me to stimulate his face, hands and feet - we very quickly built up a closer relationship.

After only a week of Temprana stimulation I began to see results.

The process started with a cleansing of the body and as a result his asthma and intestinal problems became worse, he had an outbreak of asthma eczema in many places on his body - but it didn't itch. This is apparently a normal reaction to the treatment.

During this period, I was constantly in touch with Lone who kept encouraging me to continue with the therapy.

I already began to see positive results within the first month - John Patrick stopped drooling and spitting up, it was such a great relief for me. John Patrick's balance became visibly better and he began to run around for the first time. I was able to hold prolonged eye contact with him; John Patrick started having eye contact with me throughout the entire stimulation session. The first time that happened tears ran down my cheeks, it was a wonderful feeling to suddenly have this connection with my son.

After four months of Temprana therapy stimulation, we went to see an orthopedic surgeon who remarked that his feet were less crooked - that for me was a major victory! John Patrick's asthma improved significantly and his intestinal problems were much better.

More and more positive and better results became apparent as the years went by. Some improvements happened quickly while others took longer.

Sometimes when one problem disappeared or showed improvement another previously present, but unknown one would appear and demand attention. This meant that Lone needed to constantly modify the treatment program to keep up with developments - this illustrates the high level of support and encouragement that I have received from her.

I have now been using Temprana Therapy stimulation on John Patrick for five years and the many positive results that we have achieved have vastly improved my son's quality of life.

Here is a list of the most remarkable ones:

His hearing has improved so much that he no longer needs a hearing aid.

He no longer suffers from asthma.

His intestinal problems are greatly improved.

His vision is now within normal parameters and he has good visual memory (it was only 20% before!).

He plays computer games and has a high level of concentration.

His social abilities have improved from being virtually non-existent. Now he seeks play and contact with adults and other children.

He has a well developed sense of humor and likes to tease others (especially adults).

He has a strong self will and is able to express it.

His general physical health has improved enormously.

He has shown great improvement in his personal abilities with everyday tasks such as; eating/drinking, dressing/undressing and helping with everyday tasks such as clearing up after himself.

I have no illusions about John Patrick's abilities. I am acutely aware that he will never be what is regarded as a 100% normally functioning boy, but the improvement in his quality of life and his ability to function has definitely improved.

When I look at him today I see a boy who is living and exploring his life. Generally he has a happy and harmonic nature, but sometimes does have a temper when he doesn't get his own way.

Lone Sorensen has given me an invaluable tool. Using Temprana Therapy has made and will continue to make it possible to improve my son's ability to function well in a wide range of areas. Using Temprana Therapy on John Patrick has also greatly improved my son's quality of life on a daily basis - a prospect that I never could have imagined when I first set out on this journey.

The Training Week- April 2009 Ocular Therapy experience

Veronica and Nikke practiced Ocular Therapy on each other after a workshop demonstration by Lone at the Training Week in April'09. Here is a summary of their instant results!

Veronica's (Vee) story:

I am -4.25 in both eyes and before we went on the training week in Costa Brava I had noticed that I was struggling to see things/read from a distance (with my contact lenses in). I thought that once I had returned from Spain I would need to book in to see the optician to get a higher prescription and this was concerning me. I also suffer from naturally dry eyes (so the optician tells me).

When we received the training in Ocular Therapy, I paired up with Nikke who practiced the eye treatment on me first. I have to say that I found it excruciatingly painful on the right side and thought I was going to have to tell Nikke to stop!

Once the treatment had finished I sat myself up and blinked, suddenly everything was a lot sharper! I could see things far away in the distance with such great detail (I had not experienced this for some time). I had also noticed that everything seemed to be a lot more colourful.

I then took my turn to practice Facial Reflexology with the eye treatment on Nikke and as I began to work my fingers, my tear ducts became a lot more active than they had been for a long time! I seemed to have tears falling from my face which I tried to wipe away discreetly without disturbing Nikke's relaxing treatment time!

I had noticed that even after returning from the training week (with only receiving one eye treatment) my eyesight remained just as sharp for approximately three weeks!

Nikke's story:

Two years ago, I had laser eye surgery. I have what is known as 'blended vision' which means that my right eye is dominant for near / reading and my left eye is perfect vision for distance (but is blurred for reading!). The surgery was to correct the habitual use and adjust the right and left eyes so that they were both 'good' for reading and distance. My brain took about 5 months to adjust to the eye surgery, but it had settled by the time Vee and I were working on each other and I thought it was very good.

It was a very bright morning in Playa De Aro on the day of the workshop and of course we were outside enjoying the sunshine, but by 10am the intensity of the light meant I had to use my sunglasses and a big hat, in order to see anything.

Vee and I paired up after the workshop and got to work. During the treatment, there were a couple of pain sensitive points, but I knew what Vee was doing and just breathed and relaxed my face and soon the endorphins were flowing. We probably spent 20 minutes on the treatment, so it was quite quick.

The curious thing about your eyesight, is that you only notice the improvement, when it is better, if you know what I mean! The first thing I noticed was how CLEAR my peripheral vision was and remember, I had thought my vision was very good BEFORE we started the treatment. My eyes also seemed to be more resilient to the glare of the sun too.

Vee and I kept checking with each other as the Training Week progressed, and by the 4th day after the treatment, I noticed slightly less clarity in my sight, but Vee's eyes continued to be great. We were really very very impressed and for a mere 20 minute treatment the results were remarkable!

International Temprana ReflexTherapy Course

2010 in Barcelona (in English) www.temprana.org

NOW AS DISTANCE LEARNING TOO

This course is especially tailored for therapists; its goal is to give a better understanding of the therapeutic/functional action that is achieved through the stimulation of the Nervous system and the brain.

Any therapist, who treats a patient with some kind of brain and Nervous system dysfunction, be it motor, psychological or of any other ethnology must understand the function, its anatomy as well as its physiology.

The course main purpose is to teach the therapist how to treat a person with a brain dysfunction and to build a specific treatment plan for parents or family members. The main objective is to treat a child/adult intensively at home, as rehabilitation method using Neuro Face, foot and hand reflexology as tools.

Do you wish to work with handicapped children or adults?

Then this education is the right choice for you. We can offer a course concerning this exciting education in 5 modules of 5 days.

The subjects taught during this course are:

The functions and the anatomy of the human brain

Course of Complementary VET therapy for pets NOW AS DISTANCE LEARNING TOO

Christian Johnsen

This course offers the necessary knowledge and techniques to form you professionally as a complementary VET therapist for small animals, an activity with great future in the current market.

Its content and structure has been elaborated by a team of professionals that combine the most modern techniques with a wide experience on this field.

This course is addressed to all those people who like animals and want to become a professional in complementary VET therapies for pets and small animals.

To assist this course it is not necessary to have any previous knowledge about this matter as the contents of the lessons have been written in a very simple way in order to easy the study and later follow-up and practice.

We teach techniques as Facial and Foot Reflexology, and acupressure. These methodologies deal with the healing of the body by certain changes. For example, it can stimulate the nerves, increase the blood flow, avoid muscular spasms, and cause hormonal discharge as endorphins (that control the pain), and cortisol (natural steroid). These are some of the physiological effects most known in reflexology. By combining manual therapies with homeopathy, vitamins and minerals, diet, etc., remarkable and healthier results can be achieved, and thus get a better health and life quality for the animal in a non toxic and natural way.

In this course, every student is prepared for performing professional treatments of facial and foot reflexotherapy and acupressure in small animals. Also in the use of natural remedies and diet for dogs and cats and offers assessment after finishing the complete course.

Content of the course:

Theory and practice of Facial Reflexology for dogs and cats
Theory and practice of Foot Reflexology for dogs and cats
Acupressure for dogs and cats

For dogs and cats:

Homeopathy
Diet therapy
Aromatherapy
Vitamins and minerals
Flower essentials
Herbs
